and staff dedicated to nurturing and preparing Episcopalians and other Anglicans for future leadership and service in and through the church. It seeks to nurture the next generation of leaders, equipping them in both Anglican and ecumenical traditions of Christianity and providing them with curricular and co-curricular opportunities to ground their academic, spiritual, ecclesial, professional and social-global growth.

This community of learning will be initiated and developed in communication with Episcopal dioceses that are willing to collaborate in developing a program that serves the needs of their students, particularly those students preparing for ordination. The collaboration is initially focused in the Diocese of Massachusetts and in others in Provinces I and II. More details are available at www.bu.edu/sth/ecl.

CHURCHWIDE:

- A new Advent resource, “Preparing to Become the Beloved Community,” has been developed by the Episcopal Church’s Racial Reconciliation Team and is designed for group use among all ages. Every congregation will receive in the mail “Preparing to Become the Beloved Community,” as well as a poster and resource pack with prayers, reflections and activities for each week of Advent. The resource can also be downloaded here.

Throughout Advent, an Episcopal Church social media campaign also aims to stir hope, reflection and action around racial reconciliation; join or follow using the hashtag #adventbeloved.

Episcopal Migration Ministries is offering a six-week Epiphany curriculum designed for adult Christian formation and ideal for congregations, individuals, adult forums, discussion groups and other church-based gatherings. It aims to help participants come away with a deeper understanding of Episcopal Migration Ministries, refugee resettlement, the stories of new American neighbors and God’s call to this work. Find the curriculum online here.

- Episcopalians across the church are invited to review and provide input on the preliminary draft of the 2019-2021 triennium budget. Following the comment period, the preliminary draft budget will be prepared for approval by the Episcopal Church’s Executive Council at its January 2018 meeting. From there, the Executive Council will present the draft budget to the Joint Standing Committee on Program, Budget and Finance in February, which will then prepare a final budget for approval at General Convention next summer. The preliminary draft budget is available here. Comments can be submitted here. The deadline for providing comments is Jan. 10.
